Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Reagan Kennedy worried. President Trump and his appointees seemed dismissive of climate change and ready to gut the EPA. Adult reaction seemed fatalistic, along the lines of we are all going to you know where in a you know what. Not so fast, responds Reagan. Our 45th President is a father and grandfather who has a stake in the future. Not only that, but he signed onto a letter imploring then President Obama to take swift and decisive action to combat climate change (no kidding, yes really, see p.9). How could he not care about the air we breathe, the water we drink, the planet we call home? Isn t safeguarding those things what homeland security is really about? Reagan s plan: 1. President Trump needs to be encouraged to be his best self. 2. A little environmental education might not hurt. 3. Most important- a kids movement where kids will write the president to let him know they are watching his stewardship of their future. Kids will write and applaud what he gets right (he reacts well to praise) and criticize what he gets wrong pointing him in the right direction. In the process, kids will be shining a bright light on what the administration is doing to the environment. Kids will be the agents of change, safeguarding their future and ours.
