By Edward Johns

Black Leaf Publishing. Paperback. Condition: New. 426 pages. The Race for Flugal Farm is the first book in a trilogy that charts the lives and adventures of the inhabitants of the Riding Stables at Flugal Farm. Times had been hard recently for George Flugal and his wife, and this inevitably resulted in him having to sell the majority of the schools horses until he was left with just four: Pogo, Biff, Troy and an ex-racehorse called Chance. Chance, who along with a young stablehand Rachelle Perkins, a dog named Nugget, a pig called Nigel and an old family friend Uncle Dave, make up the Flugals extended family. When they find themselves facing the possibility of having the farm, their home, repossessed by the bank, and bought out by the odious Mr Williams, have to pull together to enter a carriage drive in order to win the prize money, and save their way of life.
