Excerpt from A Commentary on the Psalms of David, Vol. 1 of 3 A year had not elapsed when all who were desirous of purer doctrine, were continually coming to learn of me while as yet but a novice and tyro. I, who was naturally somewhat simple, and was always fond of the shade and retirement, then sought where to hide myself; but this was so far from being permitted me, that all my retreats were like a public lecture room. In a word, whereas the one great object with me was to live retired and undistinguished, God so led me about through various turnings, that he yet suffered me not to rest anywhere, until in spite of the bent of my nature, I was dragged forth into the light. And it was for the pur pose of enjoying the repose so long denied me in the seclu sion of some obscure nook, that I left my fatherland and retired into Germany. But 10! While I lay hid and unknown at Basle, it happened, since, in consequence of many pious persons having been...
