The news came via the television. He sat on his work stool and watched as flames bellowed out from his neighborhood. He could not distinguish which house was their family home except the colorful television pole on his roof-top. He heard the commentator say something like, people trapped in the basement of some of the houses. Anyway, that was the last thing that he heard as he collapsed. Johnson opened his eyes to discover peeping machines all around him. He quickly recognized he was in a hospital. It was a good place to die, he thought to himself. This is the place he was going to finish it all. There was nowhere to go back to, no family, nothing. There are thousands of hopeless cases with no hope, no way and no desire. A majority of us have gone through so many adversities that we are questioning the veracity of Gods existence. This critical question warrants a critical examination in the light of God as, the all-powerful One. Unfortunately, a majority are suffering from ignorance. There are secrets...
