Excerpt: . . . to the lumber business he is interested in coal and oil, from which he derives a goodly profit. His political allegiance is given to the Democratic party, but he is independent in the matter of voting, casting his ballot for the candidate whom he considers best qualified for office, irrespective of party. He has never sought or held public office, preferring to devote his entire time and attention to his business career. There is an ancient family of this name in Dorsetshire, JORDAN England. Probably the most numerous American Jordan- family is that headed by Rev. Robert Jordan, a priest, or possibly only a deacon, of the Church of England, who came to Maine and was the pioneer of Episcopalianism in that region and leader of the opposition to Massachusetts; he afterward removed to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where he died. Guilford, Connecticut, had among its early settlers John and Thomas Jordan, probably brothers, of whom the former was certainly of Guilford in 1639. Apparently, these are not all the New England immigrants of this name. George Jordan, probably not descended from these, was an early settler of Surry county, Virginia, wherein he was appointed a justice in 1652. He was a prominent man in both civil and military affairs, being once attorney-general of Virginia, and having the military rank of lieutenant-colonel. The present family is of more recent American origin, connected with an interesting and important phase of American history. When, for perhaps the...
