

From Arm's Length to Hands-on: The Formative Years of Ontario's Public Service, 1867-1940 (Paperback)

By J. E. Hodgetts

University of Toronto Press, Canada, 1995. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Confederation in 1867 brought with it the creation of the Province of Ontario, a relief to legislators who had had to endure the uneasy union between Upper and Lower Canada; the dualism had demanded double-barrelled ministries and the four-year rotation of the capital, after 1849, between Toronto and Quebec City. The year 1867 was therefore a watershed, for it demanded that a civil service be put in place, as well as a lieutenant-governor, an executive council, and a legislative assembly. However, the election of the Whitney government in 1905 is perceived by J.E. Hodgetts as an equally important dividing point. Before 1905, the province met the fairly rudimentary needs of a largely agrarian community by relying on local authorities and the assistance of private clientele and charitable associations. Thus administration was at arm's length. It placed minimal demands on a minuscule staff and the simple structures of the emergent public service. James Whitney's arrival in 1905 coincided with the growth of natural resource industries in the north and the need to create agencies to deal with them. Developing urbanization...
