The Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering; but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. One of the immediate consequences of the fall, appears to have been that prudential arrangement for the purpose of lightening toil, which, in the political philosophy of modern days, is designated the division of labour. The curse upon the ground, and mans banishment from the beauty and blessings of the Garden which God had planted for his delight and support, made such a change in the situation of the human race, as to render it necessary that some should exclusively employ their powers in the production of food for the common sustenance. The condition of the animal creation, seems also, at the same time, to have been so far deteriorated as to require the care and superintendence of a rational being, for the preservation and defence of at least the more helpless species. Hence Abel is represented to us as a keeper of sheep, and Cain as a tiller of the ground. But whatever may have been the diminution of Gods kindness towards a sinful and corrupted race, his presence was neither altogether withdrawn, nor his power and providence unfelt, nor his mercies left unacknowledged by the incense of grateful piety. In process of time, it came to pass, that Cain brought of..
