North Star Press of St. Cloud, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. The town of Acorn Valley is abuzz with news of an art fundraiser at the elementary school that will help local animals who lost their homes because of inclement weather. With the whole town getting involved, famous area artists--Claude Monet Mon-goose, Georgia O Giraffe, Vincent Van Goat, and Pablo Picasso Peacock--all attend to auction off weather paintings coinciding with the fundraising theme. It isn't until Dr. Ced E. Meant's presentation at the Metropolitan Museum before the event, where he discusses his findings concerning the erosion of some area parks, that he discovers his research, which contains information the world would be interested in knowing, has been stolen. At the fundraiser, truths unfold that baffle detectives Joe-Joe Nut and Biscuit Bill, leading them to suspects they never thought could have committed the crime. Will they be able to solve the case before Dr. Ced E. Meant's research goes global? Join the detectives on their journey in learning about the topics of weather, erosion, and art. Look for various activities in the back of the book for enhanced learning.
