Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Learn how to outperform the experts by investing algorithmically. Based on research by Nobel prize winning economists, this slim but pithy little book shows you how to invest successfully, given that the financial markets are not regular enough for conventional financial expertise to make a significant difference in investment outcomes. Research has demonstrated that simple algorithms will outperform expertise in most instances, and that investors, both amateur and professional, typically reduce their investment returns by overcomplicating their approach to the investment markets. This book includes a sample algorithm and investment portfolio, as well as a more general philosophical discussion of investment issues with a view to identifying areas in which investors typically display overconfidence - to the ultimate detriment of their investment results.
