Time Stands Still Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 140 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.3in. J. J. and Henri are sixth graders who receive important gifts from their grandparents. J. J. gets a bracelet, and Henri receives a necklace. These give them the ability to control time. Johnny (J. J.), Henrietta (Henri), and Dr. Emory (Dr. M) could be your next-door neighbors. They are outgoing, friendly, and willing to help out anytime. J. J. and Henri are finishing their last few weeks in sixth grade at Millville Elementary School. Dr. M is a well-liked and respected sixth grade teacher. Millville is a small but vibrant town. There are several lakes nearby providing fishing, boating, and swimming. Two years ago both kids lost their fathers in a mysterious disappearance. Only their grandmothers and Dr. M know where they are. The story starts out with a treasure hunt that results in J. J. finding the bracelet his great-grandfather has left him. Its an ancient piece that has special powers that only J. J. can access. Henris grandmother lives on a nearby lake. She gives Henri the necklace while on a boating trip across the lake to a special picnic area. A spy overhears Gramma Tessie tell Henri about the mysterious power of the necklace. The story follows these kids and two of their close friends as they grow, mature, and develop courage, character, and a belief in themselves. They have successes and failures just like everyone else and grow stronger through their experiences. J. J. first uses his power over time when his good friend, Mike, falls out of a cherry tree they have climbed together many times and dies. Henri first uses her power when she and her good friend, Erika, are caught in the back of a convenience...
