Not illustrated. 1849 Excerpt: . . . a short time since, it appears that the Asclepias tuberosa is in frequent use by the regular physicians, as a gentle cathartic in difficult dentition, and as a diaphoretic. It may be said with truth, that the Asclepias tuberosa is a certain, and of course a useful diaphoretic; whether it acts in this way, as it is said to do, without increasing the force of the circulation, or augmenting the heat of the body, I am not prepared by any extensive use of the plant to answer: at the same time it must be confessed that many are the instances where this medicine has produced these effects, that the plant has supported its reputed character in this respect. And the multitude, respectability and strength of evidences in favor of this very desirable quality, leave no room to suppose that the plant has received, so far, any undue encomiums. Its expectorant effect in pneumonia and catarrha, is substantiated by a multiplicity of corroborative facts, the relation of which is derived from physicians of undoubted respectability. The late Prof. Barton esteemed the Asclepias tuberosa as one of the most important of our indigenous medicines; and he says the powdered root is escarotic. When taken internally, the dose is from twenty to thirty grains of the powder. This article may be concluded with the following quotation from Thatchers Dispensatory. The extensive experience of the gentleman there alluded to, with the plant under consideration, is entitled to great attention. The...
