The educational interests of its youth are looked after by a County Academy, and 4 large section schools, besides several private schools. Yarmouth is prettily situated upon gently undulating ground, slightly elevated above the tidal waters of its harbor. Its buildings, although mainly constructed of wood, are, for the most part, of a substantial character and its dwellings, in the greater number of instances, betoken a degree of thrift and good taste, in the dwellers, which enable Yarmouth to compare more than favorably with other Canadian towns of equal population.gram and Swing findings.
