Brand New Book. Excerpt from Altowan or Incidents of Life and Adventure in the Rocky Mountains, Vol. 2 of 2 Five days had passed without any remarkable incident; and we find Altowan at the approach of evening, looking on the games of archery, or throwing with the hand the arrows as a javelin, which occupied a crowd of youths with whom he was a paramount favorite. He was like them, stripped to the girdle round his loins, and entered into their sports with that interest which youth alone can take in the reckless pastimes of the young, feigning to compete with one in the race, with another in games of skill, wrestling with those of maturer growth, but in all bringing his strength and his spirits to a match with theirs. They were something beyond the limits of the camp, and on the river bank. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
