Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.The United States is on the verge of a health crisis of monumental proportions. Likewise, we have dramatically lower rates of infectious diseases such as tuberculosis, rheumatic fever, influenza and periodontal disease - meaning that today's children, unlike their peers 70 years ago, can expect to survive beyond their first few years. However, these and other impressive medical victories are now being undermined by a bevy of other health problems, many of our own making. Ironically, most of the diseases that plague us in the 21st century are associated with excess consumption, specifically heart disease, diabetes, obesity, many forms of cancer and even Alzheimer's. Excess intake of white flour, sugar, other refined carbohydrates and trans fats is the culprit that robs us of our health, stamina...
