

The Silwood Circle: A History of Ecology and the Making of Scientific Careers in Late Twentieth-Century Britain

By Hannah Gay

Imperial College Press, United Kingdom, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 226 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. This is an original and wide-ranging account of the careers of a close-knit group of highly influential ecologists working in Britain from the late 1960s onwards. The book can also be read as a history of some recent developments in ecology. One of the group, Robert May, is a past president of the Royal Society, and the author of what many see as the most important treatise in theoretical ecology of the later twentieth century. That the group flourished was due not only to May's intellectual leadership, but also to the guiding hand of T. R. E. Southwood. Southwood ended his career as Linacre Professor of Zoology at the University of Oxford, where he also served a term as Vice-Chancellor. Earlier, as a professor and director of the Silwood Park campus of Imperial College London, he brought the group together. Since it began to coalesce at Silwood it has been named here the Silwood Circle. Southwood promoted the interests of its members with the larger aim of raising the profile of ecological and environmental science in Britain. Given public...

READ ONLINE
[7.33 MB]

Reviews

This publication is great. It really is packed with knowledge and wisdom Your daily life period will probably be transform when you complete reading this article book.

-- Wilford Metz

Comprehensive information! Its this type of very good read. It is writter in basic words instead of hard to understand. You are going to like how the article writer compose this pdf.

-- Mabel Corwin