Excerpt: .he have triumphed, as it is said he has done, over so many of our sex, had he not been egregiously guilty of both sins? His ingenuousness is the thing that staggers me: yet is he cunning enough to know, that whoever accuses himself first, blunts the edge of an adversary's accusation. He is certainly a man of sense: there is more hope of such a one than a fool: and there must be a beginning to a reformation. These I will allow in his favour. But this, that follows, I think, is the only way to judge of his specious confessions and self-accusations--Does he confess any thing that you knew not before, or that you are not likely to find out from others?--If nothing else, what does he confess to his own disadvantage? You have heard of his duels: you have heard of his seductions.--All the world has. He owns, therefore, what it would be to no purpose to conceal; and his ingenuousness is a salvo-- Why, this, Madam, is no more than Mr. Lovelace himself acknowledges. Well, but what is now to be done?--You must make the best of your situation: and as you say, so say I, I hope that will not be bad: for I like all that he has proposed to you of Windsor, and his canonical house. His readiness to leave you, and go himself in quest of a lodging, likewise looks well. And I think there...
