Excerpt from The Scottish Historical Review, 1907, Vol. 4: Being a New Series of the Scottish Antiquary, Established 1886 The young brother was overbearing, and took good notice of what he heard, and was looking out for his brother s return. When he saw him coming, he ran to meet him. He met him in the middle of a snow shower, and said to him, Brother, dear, sit down, for I have a story to tell you. i will not, said the brother, walk home, and the day so stormy. I will not walk home, said the youngest, Sit down, do you know what my mother is going to do to you? She is going to poison your drink to-day, and you will not go in any more; they are for killing you, and you must not for all you ever saw take a drink. Why is she going to do that? said the older brother. it is, said the younger brother, lest tyou get the whole estate, and that I have nothing when my fa er dies. Go ou away home, my good lad, said the older brother, for I not go home any more. i will not, said the youngest, but wherever we there we shall be, and, said he, i will put the drink past you, and you will not get it to drink it. They went home. When they reached home, the step-mother rose to meet them with the drink. Drink that, darling! she said, for you are cold. He was going to take it, but the young brother rose, caught the dish, and threw it out with everything it contained. His mo went after him, but did not...
