Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from New England s Prospect 1933 I undertooke this worke. because there hath some relations heretofore past the Presse, which have beene very imperfect; as also because there hath beene many scandalous and false reports past upon the Country, even from the sulphurious breath of every base ballad-monger: wherefore to perfect the one, and take off the other, I have laid down the nature of the Country, without any partiall respect unto it. These remarks from the foreword to William Wood s New England s Prospect, published in London in 1634, well describe the motives that prompted the preparation of the present volume, in which Wood s title has been revived. Some relations heretofore past the Presse concerning contemporary New England have indeed been imperfect. New England has suffered from the sulphurious breath of a modern breed of ballad-monger. The several contributors to New England s Prospect - 1933 have attempted to lay down the nature of the Country, without any partiall respect unto it - that is, in a detached spirit of scholarly inquiry. They have tried not to advertise...
