Jawan Neal, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This is a story about the evolution of a young African American Black male, the trials tribulations he faces while evolving into adulthood. I feel this story comes from and different angle, because the character doesn't come from the typical scenario of and urban beginning with a single mother, single father, grandparents raising him or alcoholic/drug addict parents. He actually comes from a middle class African American family that both parents do well but ventured off track because of his own poor choices. Growing up in the 80s were both fun as well as rough for Kendrick and family his but they always pulled together making things better even when it seems unbearable for them. He became an unbelievable athlete right out the gates in high school. Making himself well known as he began to experiencing a multitude of things from sex, gambling, drugs, and street life on a day to day basis as he tried to dodge this like a car trying to allude potholes. Rising to the top is very difficult, but to fall from it is easy...
