Since then this prediction has been borne out absolutely. Strangely enough, food supply concerns have taken it up to a greater extent than almost any other, and it is now a common occurrence to read of a new store or a new chain of stores handling food products being opened up along these lines. What is believed to have been the first self-service store in the china and glass field was opened last summer by a leading concern of the Pacific Coast and it has proved a splendid success. News of this success has been published all over the country, both through the mediums of the trade press and the daily papers; yet, strangely enough, if data that has come to hand is reliable, not another concern in the country handling china and glassware has seen fit to adopt the idea. Th- Gridiron I imiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiin,...
