Gavin McKay is a seventeen-year-old boy growing up in an old mining town. Not the most popular or athletically gifted, he is subject to the grind of a small town high school. He has but one friend, Amelia, who helps him stumble through the turmoil of being a senior student. One fateful night, under the light of a full moon, Gavin is attacked by a large wolf-like creature and left for dead. Although he survived the encounter, Gavin's fight for survival has only just begun. About the Author Author David Haight was born in London, Ontario. He has had a passion for writing since he was in his early teens, often caught writing stories during his classes in college and university. David's writing career was born from a hobby and a means of coping. The characters and events in his writing often come from his personal experience. He enjoys reading fantasy novels, drawing, listening to music, and taking the occasional trip to the pub. The Call of the Moon: The Calling, was David's first published book with a plan for at least two more installments to the series.
