Excerpt from Handbook of the Association Cafeteria It would seem hardly necessary at this stage to argue for the advantage of the cafeteria to young women and to the Association, but for the sake of those who have to convince the sceptic the points most frequently made are these: More and more young women are entering the wage earning world, and more and more is it recognized that the quality of their work is largely influenced by the kind and quality of the food eaten day by day; they undoubtedly need the best at the cheapest price at which it can be had. It is being recognized as desirable - purely, of course, for the sake of the efficiency of the commercial tool - that this good food shall be eaten in a pleasant place; no longer is food to be eaten behind the counter, nor in the dressing or toilet room, nor at the work bench, nor in the workshop atmosphere; hence it is that employers of the progressive school go to considerable expense in outfitting lunch room accommodation for employees of both sexes. The commercial advantage of good food and surroundings is obviously understood by some employers. There are, however, scores of employers who do not, or who cannot, thus care for the welfare of their employees, with the result that they must either eat the food they can take with them to their work place, or they must depend upon the eating places of all types in the nearby streets.
