She s just a figurehead at the meetings. Mrs. Pendexter attends to all the work. Perhaps Mr. Gage does nt know that. He seems to think it necessary to come quite often. Mr. Gage, the Congregational minister at Boxet, was an elderly man, out of wife at the moment, as one parishioner phrased it, with his children all married and settled at a distance from him. He had a comfortable parsonage and a fair salary, and was a good-looking man, who did not seem so old as he was. Shrewder observers might have suspected a more sentimental reason for his frequent calls on Miss Sophia Wood than an abstract interest in mis THREE GIRLS WERE SITTING ROUND THE FIRE IN A BIG, OLD-FASHIONED HOUSE. (SEE PAGE 859.) slow to admit the possibility of their having lovers. Why should they...
