OCLC Number: (OCoLC)45476999 Subject: Nuclear power plants -- United States. Excerpt: . . . B-284378 on the Effects of Atomic Radiation (UNSCEAR) stated that there are theoretical reasons based solely on the nature of DNAdamage and repair to expect that cancer can occur at the lowest doses without a threshold in the response, although this effect would perhaps not be statistically 14 demonstrable. Despite the linear models unproven and controversial status among scientists, some scientists said the model is so well accepted that it could only be superseded on the basis of overwhelming contrary evidence. Two types of important research into low-level radiation effects have been Research Efforts to Verify conducted. One type of study painstakingly follows the long-term health of Low-Level Radiation Effects individuals in large populations exposed to radiation, seeking statistically Are Ongoing significant patterns of elevated cancer risks from the radiation exposures. These are called epidemiological studies. Another type of study subjects animals or tissue or cell cultures to radiation, seeking biological evidence of radiation effects. These are called radiobiological studies. Epidemiological studies may never conclusively prove or disprove the linear model, according to some scientists. Epidemiological studies have been a key basis for the linear model, including the research evidence accumulated on over 85, 000 Japanese survivors of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bomb blasts. The study, conducted by the international Radiation Effects Research Foundation, has well established the effects of radiation at high exposure levels, and scientists have extrapolated this relationship to the low-level radiation range as well - with considerable inherent 15 uncertainty. However, some scientists have questioned the projects results, asserting among other concerns that the basic estimates of...
