Let us now go back to our narrative in the year 417. The moment had at last come when Melania could leave the soil of Africa, and gratify her longing to go to Palestine, whither she was drawn by her ardent desire to visit the Holy Places. She embarked with Albina and Pinianus at Carthage, and two days later found herself at Alexandria. Melania, as ever, filled with the spirit of lowliness and humility, wished to remain unknown, and looked forward to spending a few days in the city in the obscurity of some poor lodging. But her pious wishes were not to be gratified. Her name had become so venerated amongst Christians that they everywhere esteemed themselves happy to offer her hospitality. Thus it was that a surprise awaited Melania in the prosperous capital of Lower Egypt. St. Cyril was at that time Patriarch of that important see, and the greatest and most learned of the Eastern bishops. And now this luminary of the Church received St. Melania with all possible honour, and insisted that during her stay in Alexandria she should be his guest. Although we cannot form any clear idea...
