At a glance this house is sympathetically Georgian, but upon second thought it betrays a modern French tendency. It has an element of both: enough of the one to give it solidity, sufficient of the other to assure it grace. The wrought-iron railing which passes across the facade on a line with the drawing room windows is an unusual feature, intelligently introduced. In its design it is individually attractive, and as an element of the general composition it successfully bridges over the transition from stone to brick. The Bachelor Apartment House, which is but just completed, is perhaps more notable as a product of the age than for its architectural pretension. It presents an orderly facade of selected brick and stone and shows on its roof a garden of attractive size and design. Within it is admirably planned and almost brilliantly...
