Forgotten Books, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Zeckwer-Hahn, Philadelphia Musical Academy, 1617 Spruce Street, Philadelphia: Season 1931-1932 The present arrangement of the School curriculum is a decided step in advance. While the methods and courses remain substantially the same, the school has been divided into three Departments, namely, Preparatory, Conservatory and Graduate, the description of which will be found in the following pages. Musical education has undergone many radical changes in the last half century, and great improvements in methods of presentation have taken place. When new methods have been thoroughly tested and found advantageous, they have been adopted as part of the School curriculum, but only after thorough investigation. The School offers courses in musical education, including all branches usually undertaken by musicians and interested amateurs. For the professional, there are courses which lead to Degrees of Bachelor and Master of Music, which conform to the requirements laid down by the most advanced Schools of Music in the country. Courses are also provided for children, and those desiring to study music as an avocation. Branch Schools are maintained in various parts of the city, especially for...
