Diputación de Ciudad Real, España, 2013. Encuadernación de tapa dura. Book Condition: Nuevo. 25x16cm. Cirilo Vara y Soria (Villamanrique de Tajo, Madrid, 1820-Ciudad Real, 1885) además de artífice de la renovación arquitectónica carcelaria de Ciudad Real, introduciendo las nuevas ideas del sistema panóptico, produjo una profunda revolución en los más diversos ámbitos de la edificación provincial, como la arquitectura teatral, hospitalaria, municipal, educativa y funeraria, ocupándose incluso de calles y vías de comunicación. Formado en Madrid, en la Real Academia de Nobles Artes de San Fernando, donde obtuvo el título de arquitecto, allí estudió tanto los clásicos como las últimas corrientes que plasmó en sus proyectos y reformas, si bien, hoy desgraciadamente solo queda en pie una pequeña parte de su trabajo. Si nos ha legado, como gran obra, el Teatro Municipal de Almagro. En este libro, su autora estudia monográficamente por una parte la vida y obra de Cirilo Vara. Después se centra en la implantación del panóptico /planificación original de Jeremías Benthan en 1791 que permite al ojo humano una observación visual total, y así un control pleno con la mínima economía), estudiando los tres edificios carcelarios que se proyectaron en la provincia.
