Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Elementary Vector Analysis: With Application to Geometry and Physics The son gave early evidence of genius, being a remarkable linguist and displaying great mathematical talent. He entered Trinity College, Dublin, in 1824, where he had a brilliant and unprecedented career. His ability was so conspicuous that in 1827, while still an undergraduate, he was asked to apply for the vacant Andrews Professorship of Astronomy in the University of Dublin, and was appointed to the position. He was not specially qualified as a practical astronomer; but the conditions of his appointment allowed him to advance the cause of Science in the way he felt best able to do so. In 1835, while acting as secretary to the at its meeting in Dublin, he received a knighthood; and two years later the importance of his scientific work was recognised by his election as President of the Royal Irish Academy. His mathematical work continued uninterrupted till his death on 2nd September, 1865, at the age of sixty. It often happens that we get our most important ideas while not formally working at a subject, perhaps while walking in the country or by the sea, or even in more commonplace surroundings. From a letter of Hamilton s we learn that, on 16th October, 1843, while he was walking beside the Royal Canal on his way to preside at a meeting of the Academy, the thought flashed into his mind which gave the key to a problem that had been occupying his thoughts, and led to the birth and development of the subject of Quaternions. He announced the discovery at that meeting of the Academy, and asked per mission to read a paper on quaternions...
