Excerpt: . . . since, the inner principle of the Monroe Doctrine, the protection of the weak nation against the strong, has now gained a recognized place in the conscience of the world. It is the verdict of an international conscience that is felt today, in the declaration that such defiance of the principle of nationality as has been committed against France and the Slavic peoples of Europe should not longer be tolerated by civilized nations, --and more, that these wrongs must be redressed. The European system was based upon the doctrine of the Balance of Power. By this principle, the distribution, division or annexation of territory was the concern of kings in whom all government was vested. The people wereonly as herds of cattle. The royal solicitude was to keep an equilibrium of power among the states. When the great awakening came at the opening of the...
