Excerpt: . * fanciful theory, the 835 cases at the head of my table attesting to a stern reality. The completeness and the general diffuseness of the degenerative condition induced by an heredity of imbecility--which I have found in all my studies, from profound idiocy up through the higher grades--has so convinced me of its activity as an agent in that malnutrition to which all influences tend; that upon finding it in a family history I feel no hesitancy in assiffninp f it K th primary cause to which a1 others are subsidiary; not only readily assimilating with them, but by disintegration and enfeeblement actually predisposing the system to their attack. The fatality of such heredity is evidenced in its repetition, not infrequently several members of one family showing its influence, and unfortunately such families are not apt to number few individuals; for the animal instincts...
