Many years after this, about the year 1790, two ladies paid a visit at Allanbank--I think the house was then let---- and passed the night there. They had never heard a word about the ghost; but they were disturbed the whole night with something walking backwards and forwards in their bed-chamber. This I had from the best authority. Sir Robert Stuart was created a baronet in the year 1687. Lady Stapleton, grandmother of the late Lord Le Despencer, told me, that the night Lady Susan Fane, Lord Westmoreland s daughter, died in A species of lace made of tluead.--Jamie-son. London, she appeared to her father, then at Merriworth, in Kent. He was in bed, but had not fallen asleep. There was a light in the room; she came in, and sat down in a chair at the foot of the bed. He said to her, Good God, Susan! how came you here? What has brought you from town? She made no answer; but rose directly, and went to the door, and looked back toward him very earnestly; then she retired, shutting the door behind her. The next morning he had notice of her death. This, Lord Westmoreland himself told to Lady Stapleton, who was by birth a Fane, and his near relation. CHAPTER V. APPARITIONS SEEKING THE PR-AYERS OF THE LIVING. Wrrn regard to the appearance of ghosts,...
