Excerpt: . . . which legend says turn into geese. I was a goose barnacle. Down in the vasty deeps among the coral, the dulse grasses and the sea-weeds I was born, and being a goose barnacle I supposed that I would turn into a goose by and by. We belong to the oldest known family of barnacles, the Lepas. Our family history dates back to the cretaceous period. Long before Mother Nature even thought of the Irish Elk, the cave bears, the elephant, the great horse, the caribou or the mastodon, she created the goose barnacle. Fifty years ago, however, the world knew very little about us, or our history. Cuvier, Gerard and others classed us as mollusks, but Darwin was wiser. Like the great Goethe he saw into things. He studied us. To him we owe the rescue of. our history and traditions from oblivion. He...
