SARASATE once found his memory deserting him at a recital, but he discovered the reason of the mishap in time to prevent a failure. A lady was fanning herself in the front row of the stalls. The violinist stopped playing. Madame, he said, how can I play in two-four time when you are beating six-eight? The lady shut her fan and the recital was concluded successfully. Gentleman.-- Frederick, go up stairs and tell my wife to stop her singing. Footman.-- That is not my lady, sir; it s the cook. Shall I Gentleman.-- No, for heaven s sake don t say anything! --Wiener Caricaturen. Mr. Samuel Walker, of Ripley, enters the following protest against the will of the late Dr. C. J. Oldham, who, according to the Daily News bequeathed four Strads to the British Museum; he says in his letter: Your recent references to the four Strads bequeathed by Dr. C. J. Oldham to the British Museum have induced me to ask why Strads are locked up in museums and cabinets. They are bought up by millionaires who do not use them, but collect them as mere symbols of wealth; whereas their raison d etre is to be heard. I read in the Daily News recently that some gentleman had left several valuable violins to certain professors and students of such instruments at our musical colleges. I could almost place this appeal on the ground of patriotism and urge the...
