METHODS OF PROTEIN AND NUCLEIC ACID RESEARCH 2 IMMUNOELECTROPHORESIS APPLICATION OF RADIOISOTOPES

Springer. Paperback. Condition: New. 206 pages. Dimensions: 9.6in. x 6.7in. x 0.5in. A consideration of the different types of immunoelectrophoresis is the natural conclusion to the methods of electrophoretic fractionation described in the preceding book for proteins and nucleic acids. Immunoprecipitation is the essential component process of immunoelectrophoresis, and is in itself a highly specific method of purifying proteins. It can also be used for their detection after conventional electrophoresis or isoelectrofocusing. It is therefore worthwhile considering the mechanism and specific features of immunoprecipitation before considering immunoelectrophoresis itself. Some of these features, in particular, the ambiguity of the immune response and the polymorphism of immune reactions, cannot be understood without a brief but not superficial knowledge of the mechanism of generating immunity, the structure and function of the immunoglobulins, and the nature of antigen-antibody interactions. A knowledge of these topics is necessary for an understanding of the radioimmune methods dealt with in the second Part of the book. In the majority of cases biochemists and molecular biologists are inadequately acquainted with contemporary immunochemistry, which is currently undergoing rapid development. All this justifies the inclusion of a detailed introduction to immunochemistry as the first chapter. Chapter 2 is devoted to a description of the use of antisera in the immunological assay of components separated by conventional electrophoresis and IEF. The remaining three Chapters analyze the different forms of immunoelectrophoresis, usually carried out in agarose gels. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
