Excerpt from Jean-Marie: A Play in One Act Scene: - Interior of a Breton farmhouse. To the right, down-stage, is a deep and high fireplace; near this is an old chair. Half-way up-stage on the same side is a door leading into the next room. To the left is an old cupboard. Downstage, are a table, a leather chair, and a few stools. In the upper right-hand corner of the room is a window looking out on the sea-cliff. Center is an arched doorway, through which land and sea can be observed. As the curtain rises Therese is standing by the open window, busied with flax and a spindle. She sings softly as she works: Therese. (Singing) The brig sailed past out over the sea With its sails and masts so high; The Saint Azenor flew like a bird And a thousand stars filled the sky. (She suddenly breaks off and looks out through the door) The seagulls are crying so mournfully this evening! There on the beach their cries mingle with the moan of the ocean: I never hear them without thinking of this old,...
