INTEGRATED REACTION AND SEPARATION OPERATIONS

Springer Jul 2006, 2006. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 235x155x20 mm. Neuware - Economic needs as well as ecological demands are major driving forces in improving chemical processes and plants. To meet these goals processes have to be intensified in order to get products of higher quality, to increase yield by reducing or even suppressing by-products and to minimise energy consumption. A preferred principle for such intensifications is process - tegration, especially integration of reaction and separation operations. S- entific research..
