However, these are opinions of men who really have never tried it out. The following is from ever over-cautious Philadelphia: The question of efficacy of sprinklers in garages is doubtful. There is a deduction of 15 in grading such risks for the automobile occupancy. So far we have had little experience with sprinklers in garage fires except some small ones in which the sprinklers were probably of some service in checking or holding the fires, but as to garages generally it is difficult to make a positive statement in reference to the value of such protection. The Ever Recurring Philosophy Frederick (J. Moore. Assistant Secretary of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company and superintendent of the special risk and inspection department: -- Automatic sprinklers in automobile garages are of value as much diminish the chance of a fire which will ultimately spread into gasoline...
