Excerpt: . . . quantity, being confined almost entirely to the making of articles for special occasions, and for trousseaux of the wealthy, but now it has been developed until there are very many articles of household use in which the drawn-work is utilized to good advantage, . and the industry is on a sound business footing, having increased from a mere pittance for a few persons to a very respectable livelihood for hundreds, one might almost say thousands. It is a cottage industry, and has a quite noticeable effect in improving the condition of the homes of the workers. Could you see the homes, you would be surprised that such beautiful work could come from such crude, rough surroundings, with little attempt at anything lovely, beautiful or artistic in them. The dexterity of the nimble fingers of the expert is truly wonderful, and one feels that they must have an artistic nature in order to produce such exquisite results. One of the fascinations of the work is watching the improvement in the homes of the workers. A Day at Guines By Isabel W. Cooper from Havana for tourists is the 1 trip to the great Providencia Sugar Mills. Each day a special train with a special guide leaves the Havana station for an afternoon in this model electric mill. We chose to stop in Giiines, just three milesthis side of Providencia, and to go and come on a regular train without tourists and without a guide. If...
