Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Tales of Strange Adventure Our readers are aware that Dumas was a mighty traveller - not only in the flesh, but still more in the spirit. Under his guidance they have already found themselves at Fontenay-aux-Roses and in the Sierra Morena; and having received his assurance that the Thousand and One Phantoms is a collection of tales of all countries in which his personal souvenirs are interwoven, they will feel no surprise at now being taken to Madagascar, Ceylon, Negombo, Goa, Calicut, Manilla, and Bidondo, - by way of Brussels, Amsterdam and Monnikendam. We can promise them that on their travels they will be well amused. A contemporary of Dumas, being asked for his opinion of the works of the author of Monte Cristo, said of them that, not being amusing - not containing le mot pour rire, - they were destined never to be reprinted, and to be religiously preserved near the complete works of d Urfe and de Scudery! And he went on to say that such writers as Clairville and Lambert Thiboust...
